In 1972 Granada Television staff-producer, Muriel Young put together a six part music series where six well known bands were given the chance to come and perform in front of a live studio audience. Those taking part were Badfinger, Argent, Middle of the Road, Slade, ELO and Pentangle. The series was sadly cancelled after one series and the performances are either lost or buried in the Granda archive.

One of the series to have remained in circulation and in reasonable broadcast condition is the performance by Apple label legends Badfinger.
